Responding to God's goodness

Each of you should give what you have decided in your heart to give, not reluctantly or under compulsion, for God loves a cheerful giver. And God is able to bless you abundantly, so that in all things at all times, having all that you need, you will abound in every good work. 2 Corinthians 9:7-8

It is impossible for us to fathom the goodness and generosity of God. It's hard enough for me to understand the sacrifices that my parents made for me as they sought to give me the best they could as I was growing up. Like most parents, my mum and dad never mentioned what they went without so that I was well provided for. It was only in later life that I discovered just how amazing my parents were as they looked after me.

God's provision to us is magnitudes higher. Everything that we have comes from God's hand. More than that, he gives us a purpose and meaning for our lives. Most of all, we receive the grace of God that assures us of eternal life. When we try to contemplate how vast God's provision is we are quite overwhelmed. All we can do is thank him and respond with grateful, generous hearts.

As cherished children of God we respond to God's actions through our gifts to him and to others. We know that we will always have what we need both physically and spiritually. In fact, the bible says that God will provide us with an abundance from which we can offer time and resources for the work of his kingdom and to serve those around us. As we grow as Christians we find this is not a burden but a privilege we have as we partner God in his plan for the world. We cheerfully give as God lovingly gives to us.

This quote has always been one that resonates with me. For me it perfectly explains the idea that just because you're not the cause of a problem, doesn't mean you shouldn't be part of the solution. I think everyone at one point in their lives has been faced with a challenge that they'd just rather ignore – that they'd rather not think, speak or even look at – because it's far easier to do nothing when we don't acknowledged the problem in the first place, than when we look at it up close, face to face, and see it for what it really is. The issue of refugees (or displaced individuals) is one of those "problems", that many people brush-off or ignore on the same premise – "it's really not my business – not my problem, not my job". But that's not true, and we know it. I often think about what my life would be like if even one aspect of it was different. If I'd been born in a different country, had different family / parents, different friends or even a different school. So many of these things have been decided for me, completely out of my control, and in my case they've worked out for the best, but for others (at no fault of their own) things have left them in a much worse situation. I don't know why I have all that I have, and someone just like me who is only on the other side of the ocean doesn't; but I do know that I will do anything I can to make sure that that person is given the same opportunities that I, and others, so easily take for granted.

Any donation, big or small, can make a difference in the lives of even just one of the 68.5 million refugees worldwide. So please help me reach my goal ($300), by sponsoring me for the 2018 40 Hour Famine Backpack Challenge. The link to my fundraising page is as follows: <https://www.40hourfamine.com.au/supporters/2646369>, otherwise I am happy to take cash donations.
